

Most cities throughout Russia are relatively painless to register in, and, if you are staying in a hotel you should have no problems at all.

However, if you are staying in one of the following "restricted" cities and not staying in a hotel, then you will need to get a registration support letter from us and if the OVIR will not register your visa, go to our local partner office who will register your visa for you. Please note that the partner office will make a charge for this which is payable directly to them.

You should also ensure that you have listed the city as one to be visited when you request your visa from us and that you have a copy of your visa support documents with you when you arrive.
